Valerie performing as Shania Twain does an excellent impersonation of Shania not only by capturing the vocal style of the country mega-star, but also by the meticulous duplicating of her stage costumes. Even Shania Twain was so impressed that she invited Valerie to join her on stage in Las Vegas during her "Still the One" show so that everyone could see her outfit! Valerie has had the honor of paying tribute to Shania Twain for more than eighteen years with performances in 8 countries spanning 3 continents!

Valerie was busy battling jetlag with her band as they traveled halfway around the world not once, but three times to entertain the U.S. Armed Forces stationed in Japan, Okinawa and South Korea. In addition to those successful international tours, was an eye opening and suspense-filled journey to the Balkans Region where they were officially transported to various U.S. military camps in Kosovo and Macedonia for special concert performances at these locations, boosting the morale and spirits of the troops stationed in this dangerous and troubled part of the world.

Our tribute to Shania can be a simple track show or accompanied by up to a 6-piece professional band complete with a steel guitar and fiddle player. You'll hear all of the crowd favorite chart-topping hits including, "That Don't Impress Me Much", "Man! I Feel Like A Woman!" and "You're Still The One". In true Shania style, the music is uniquely pop-country with a whole lot of attitude and a kickin' rock edge.
